EVERYTHING YOU WANT IN THE TIMES-DISPATCH

BARGAIN WANT ADS.

Pages might be written of the great diversity of subjects contained in the many columns of classified want ads which appear from day to day in The Times-Dispatch, making a most valuable as well as an entertaining medium. Especially interesting and valuable are these want ad columns in the Sunday issue; they are a vertisable encyclopaedia of information for every one, whether they want to buy, sell, rent or exchange anything from a house and lot or a farm down to the most commonplace article in everyday use.

The Times-Dispatch want ad. columns are the recognized medium of the people in which to make known their wants, notably the large number of situations offered to the unemployed and the services of the unemployed offered to those who may need them. Under their respective heads are found offers and wants of dry goods, citching, musical instruments, diamonds, jewelry, machinery, animals, horses, dogs, birds and other pets; in fact, anything and everything that we may need. tably the large number of situations of-fered to the unemployed and the services of the unemployed offered to those who may need them. Under their respective heads are found offers and wants of dry goods, clothing, musical instruments, diamonds, jewelry, machinery, animals, horses, fogs, birds and other pets; in fact, anything and everything that we may need.

In the way of business opportunities there are stores, factories, cafes, pro-lette, physical culture and dramatic schools.

Then there are columns of furnished or unfurnished rooms and apartments, houses, flats, farms, stables, lots—overything that is rentable—to rent or wanted, plainly demonstrating the wisdom of people making use of The Times-Dispatch Result Bringing Want Ad. Columns in their various enterprises. Moral: If your business is bad, advertise in the medium that the people read—The Times-Dispatch Want Ad Columns—and you can get all the business you can take care of. Don't.

Hatcher as the man at Stuart.'

The inquiry regarding Hatcher, however, recalls vividly to the mind of Major Howard and many other citizens of the city the work done by the man in Richmond in the interest of the Sanday Observance League, he having been especially employed to report, and, if possible, convict all violators of the Sunday-closing laws. Through the efforts of this man, two or three convictions were secured, but the police do not attribute this to any exceptionally clever work on his part.

It was the custom of Hatcher, so it is It was the custom of Hatcher, so it is It was the custom of ratherer, so it is said, to hang around the entrance to sa-loons supposed to be deing a Sunday bus-iness, secure the names of people seen to leave the place and then report the place as violating the law.

HE WANTS TO KNOW ABOUT HATCHER Major Howard Receives a Letter Inquiring Concerning

Richmond Detective.

Chief of Police Howard is in receipt of a letter from W. H. Clark, editor, owner and proprietor of the Stuart En-terprise, a weekly publication, issued at Stuart, Va., in which inquiries are made as to the present whereabouts and business standing of J. E. Hatcher, formerly superintendent of the American Detective Agency, of this city. The letter sets forth that two and one half years ago Hatcher had inserted in

American Detective Agency, showing to the company, its assets, liabilities and the probabilities of the account ever be-ing settled. But the executive head of the local police force is as much in the dark concerning the company and Hatcher as the man at Stuart/

Shortly after completing his work for the Observance League Hatcher opened the American Detective Agency. He ad-vertised extensively in the smaller pa-pers over the State, and for a time ap-peared to do a good business. Finally and suddenly Hatcher disap-peared from Richmond, falling to tell any one of his future address.

ing forgery.

An effort was made to locate the man, but it met with failure, and since nothing has ever been heard from him. He is supposed to have gone South and located either in Atlanta or New Orsesses.
